Small cohesive groups, points of light that orient our choices and directions. And what if these were the experiences that so many of us were having around the world, in search of sustainable educational models and encounters between different generations, to expand these circles? There are already a number of educational realities that experiment with forms of intentional relationship. We would like to share a small piece, speaking about our dreams and how much we have already achieved in this field at Damanhur. What are the current projects, what strategies have we discovered, and what are the initial concrete results?
